

MEFA Resources to Help You

Just for you: mefa.org/counselors

Bookmark mefa.org/counselors as your one-stop resource for assistance as you guide families through the college planning process. Download handouts, learn about professional development opportunities, and access the information you need on college admissions and financial aid.

Direct to your inbox: MEFA school counselor emails

If you have new school counselors in your office, encourage them to sign up for our school counselor email program. Our emails include tips and reminders to pass on to families in the college planning process, important financial aid regulatory updates, upcoming professional development opportunities, and resources for your use throughout the academic year.

Link to us: mefa.org

We have a website full of college planning information, and we've found that families find our website much more quickly when it's linked directly from their high school's home page. We encourage you to post mefa.org as prominently as possible to provide your families easy access to all our admissions and financial aid resources.

Read our posts: MEFA Blog

Our website's blog, updated several times a week, provides valuable guidance, useful tips, and breaking news updates on all aspects of college planning. We encourage you to bookmark mefa.org/blog and visit it often. You can easily share articles with your families right from our website.

Like us and follow us: Facebook, Twitter, and LinkedIn

We post important information and great resources daily on Facebook, Twitter, and LinkedIn. Like us and follow us through these venues, and be sure to share our posts with your families.

Connect with MEFA online for college planning updates:

